INTRODUCTION

A sound research methodology is a key to comprehensive research output and outcome. To materialize this vision, there is need to train, reorient and reenergize the research scholars on the subject matter of research methodology.

The current online workshop is an effort to involve and engage the research scholars in intensive discussion, presentations and participation on the subject of research methodology. These deliberations and outcomes of the workshop will assist and enrich them in their on going and proposed projects including PhD thesis, dissertation, projects and research articles.

Usually, research methodology workshops are often well packed with methods and techniques of data analysis but with limited understanding of research design as a whole. Keeping this challenge in mind, the present online workshop has been designed to guide the researcher from the selection of the topic to get recognition of research work. The practices and guidelines set by various competent authority around globe for research shall elaborated and explained by the resource persons for the workshop
