Jane Harris has had a tough go of it lately. Exactly one year ago, her daughter Mary died in a tragic accident. And since then, she's turned into a recluse. But all that's about to improve.

Jane is ready to re-immers herself in the high-class society of Orange Country, California. There's just one problem: things have changed. Her husband David continues to work late nights at the office, and her younger daughter Betsy is about to graduate high school.

Suddenly, Jane feels cast out from society...and doesn't think it's her own doing. At the same time, she begins to fear that someone knows more about her daughter Mary's death than they've previously conveyed.

The seed I sown or so

Childhood By Markus Natten

When did my childhood go?
Was it the day I ceased to be eleven,
Was it the time I realised that Hell and Heaven
Could not be found in Geography,
And therefore could not be,
Was that the day!

When did my childhood go?
Was it the time I realised that adults were not all they seemed to be,
They talked of love and preached of love,
But did not act so lovingly,
Was that the day!

When did my childhood go?
Was it when I found my mind was really mine,
To use whichever way I choose,
Producing thoughts that were not those of other people But my own,
and mine alone,
Was that the day!

Where did my childhood go?
It went to some forgotten place,
That's hidden in an infant's face, That's all I know.

Father to Son Elizabeth Jennings

I do not understand this child
Though we have lived together now
In the same house for years,
I know Nothing of him, so try to build
Up a relationship from how
He was when small. Yet have I killed

The seed I spent or sown it where
The land is his and none of mine?
We speak like strangers, there's no sign
Of understanding in the air.
This child is built to my design
Yet what he loves I cannot share.

Silence surrounds us.

I would have Him prodigal,
returning to His father's house,
the home he knew,
Rather than see him make and move His world.
I would forgive him too,
Shaping from sorrow a new love.

Father and son, we both must live
On the same globe and the same land,
He speaks: I cannot understand Myself,
why anger grows from grief.
We each put out an empty hand,
Longing for something to forgive.
